Monday.
Monster street parade.
Tabernacle services.

A hundred members of the federated women's clubs of Tulsa marched into the tabernacle last night, singing gospel hymns and carrying a large banner on which were the words: "Tabernacle Club Women."

Rev. G. A. Taubman of the First Christian church, was in the tabernacle for the first time in over two weeks. He limped slightly as he mounted the platform to offer prayer. When it was announced that he had sufficiently recovered from a recent automobile accident to attend the services prolonged applause went up from the crowd.

The attendance was the largest of the entire week, and Dr. Lyon espouse great things for the remaining days of the meeting.

"On Monday," he said, "will occur the street parade. It will be the greatest parade the state of Oklahoma ever saw. There will be something doing every day from now on until the close of the meetings. No more rest days. We've just got ten more days together and we're just getting started. Your local pastors have been stricken and afflicted since and its delightful climate during the month of March.

Galveston

—sunshiny days, sea breezes —finest surf bathing in America, —fishing and hunting, —U. S. Troops at Ft. Crockett and Texas City, —finest hotel and accommodations.

Galveston is particularly lively and attractive just now with Uncle Sam's fighting forces in camp and on the transports in the harbor. Take advantage of the present Low Excursion Fares and see Galveston at its best.

TWO OF THE SEVEN WONDERS OF THE MODERN WORLD.

A spirited voting contest has just been concluded in Germany to decide what constitutes the seven chief wonders of the twentieth century. After the enormous volume of votes cast were counted it was found that the majority had placed the wireless telegraphy at the head of the list, as might be expected, and the Panama canal second. It is gratifying to find that popular opinion on the continent should so generally recognize this American achievement. The third of the seven wonders, it was decided, is the dirigible airship, next in order the flying machine, radium, the cinematograph and the steamship Imperator.

An extraordinary photograph is reproduced herewith which shows two of the seven wonders of the modern world in close proximity. By a lucky chance the photographer has caught the dirigible airship Hausy and the Imperator, both of the Hamburg-American Line, on the same plate. The great airship, which measures more than 800 feet in length, was on one of her regular air cruises at the time she passed over the steamer. The luxurious cabin of the Hausy accommodates eighteen passengers, besides the wireless telegraph equipment and a little pantry. She frequently attains a speed of over sixty miles an hour, and flights of over 1,000 miles have been made without alighting.

It is surprising to find that the airship appears so large in comparison with the great steamer. The Imperator measures 810 feet in length, or nearly twice that of the Hausy. So rapid is the development of navigation that even the Imperator has been surpassed by her sister ship, the Vaterland, measuring 850 feet in length and one passing the Imperator in every dimension. A third sister ship of similar dimensions is now building.

These meetings started as in no other place in this country. I don't think a single one of them has escaped accident or illness. I'm glad to see Rev. Taubman back with us, but Rev. Kerr and Rev. Gannady are both sick at home.

"The meetings have been maligned and misrepresented," he declared with great fervor. "At no place where I have held meetings during the past ten years have I been abused and slandered and lied about as in Tulsa. Every sort of story has been circulated; every hindrance put in our way. They have even said that these meetings were brought about for political purposes. Why, these local pastors planned to have me here before last Christmas but I couldn't get away."

"It's taken all these four weeks to overcome these things and get the people to thinking right. I believe the last obstacle has been swept away. This very day we have accomplished more and have seen a bigger display of Christianity than at any time since the meetings started. One of your whiskey men told a friend of mine today that liquor sales in Tulsa had dropped off 75 per cent during the past two weeks. Thank God for that."

The evangelist welcomed the club women to the tabernacle.

"The old idea that woman is only a butterfly, the slave of man, is out of date," he said. "I'm glad to see these clubs that stand for godly things, for art and literature and music. Nothing has done more to promote civilization than you sincere club women. These flippant, biddy-playing, ball room clubs are of no good. My wife attends her clubs, but she puts her church first."

"I am proud of American womanhood for the fight they have made for equal suffrage—not women's suffrage. Equal suffrage is the name for it. I'm mighty proud that the women of Chicago, where I live, will this spring, for the first time, go to the polls. And I'm glad we've got a clean fearless paper like the Chicago Tribune. Why even scamps like Bach House John and Hinky Dink got up in the city council there last week and advocated the doing away with family entrance signs. I'm sorry that Oklahoma hasn't got an equal suffrage law. You've got a lot of other things to be proud of. You adopted one of the best constitutions any state ever had. Why shouldn't the women have the ballot? They, above all others, have at heart the very best interests of the home and the morals and righteousness of the community."

The evangelist's sermon was on "The Vital Issue." He declared that paramount is the proposition, "What Christ Ye of Christ?" He characterized the four attitudes toward Christ as apathy, antagonism, admiration and acceptance.

Many converts came forward at the close of the sermon.
